

Here's what has happened in the last few months and what's to come!

Thank you for joining us for our latest edition of our quarterly newsletter. At ASB Help, we are proud to support people affected by anti-social behaviour, as well as dedicated professionals working hard to tackle it every day.

The last couple of months has seen an important publication from the Home Office: the updated statutory guidance including vital updates to the ASB Case Review guidance.

We have been linking in with victims of anti-social behaviour for their feedback on these changes, as well as collating real victim cases to raise awareness of the impact of ASB.

As we approach winter, we will be focusing on expanding our training packages and website resources to enable practitioners to address ASB effectively.

In this newsletter you can expect:

Quote from our CEO, Harvi Saimbhi:

"Recent months have brought real progress, with the updated statutory guidance including the implementation of key recommendations from the Victims' Commissioner's report on ASB Case Reviews. It's encouraging to see a stronger focus on victims' voices, and at ASB Help we remain committed to empowering practitioners and ensuring every victim feels heard and supported."

Bhim Kohli: An unnecessary tragedy

"Our hearts have been completely broken."

This quarter, we highlighted the recent case of Bhim Kohli, where two teenagers have been sentenced for his manslaughter. This followed a series of unaddressed anti-social reports in the area.

Government updates

- The Home Office published the updated statutory guidance for ASB tools and powers, mainly pertaining to the ASB Case Review.
- The Crime and Policing Bill continues to progress through parliament and is currently at it's Committee Stage in the House of Lords.

Testimonials

"An excellent organisation who helped us develop an ASB Case Review process that is fit for purpose"

- South Norfolk & Broadland Councils, October 25

"I was given tips on moving forward & what I could put into place, some of the ideas I hadn't even considered, like talking to a doctor. But from the tips given & the helpful way it was put across to me, I managed to do a couple of things already."

- Victim enquirer, September 25

"Thank you so much for your detailed and thoughtful response. We've now contacted the services you mentioned, and we're following up on the ASB Case Review process as advised. Your support has been really helpful in pointing us in the right direction and making sure we're taking the right steps.

We really appreciate the time you've taken to go through our situation and provide practical advice."

- Victim enquirer, August 25

"Really useful training for my role. The trainers interacted well and listened to the answers the officers and staff were giving. Fantastic!"

- West Yorkshire Police, October 25
